A Note From Betsy...

June 2016

Summer is here!

It's hard to believe in two months you will be arriving on campus to begin your graduate program here at Penn State! We (faculty, students, and staff) are excited that you will be joining us. The incoming graduate cohort consists of 12 students.

Our office is already preparing for your arrival. As part of the preparation, we have put together this packet of information that we hope will assist you in your move to Penn State.

This newsletter includes information about the College of Communications, the Graduate School and other University offices. This also includes information about State College (housing guide, restaurants, community events, Happy Valley activities and entertainment).

Throughout the summer, our office will send you emails with any updates and news from our office and the Graduate School.

If you have any questions as you prepare for your graduate program here at Penn State, please contact me at brh3@psu.edu or 814-865-3070.

Enjoy your summer!

Orientation

Graduate School Orientation

Wednesday, August 17

Graduate Students in Communication (GSIC)

Graduate Students in Communication (GSIC) is an organization composed of all the graduate students in the College of Communications.

While every graduate student in the College is a member of GSIC, three students are selected each year to serve as executive officers (president, vice president, and secretary/treasurer). The executive officers plan graduate student events, assist with administration in the College, and offer various academic and social opportunities to graduate students in the College. Responsibilities of GSIC officers include, but are not limited to:

- Acting as liaisons between the student cohort and the faculty
- Assisting in the general operation of student offices in the James Building
- Organizing social events that allow sharing/collaboration of academic pursuits
- Providing opportunities for academic development through training workshops
- Striving to assist with conference preparation and travel funding
- Arranging and executing community and/or university service projects

GSIC has a Facebook page that updates graduate students about upcoming events, news from the graduate office, etc. If you would to be added to the Facebook page, please contact Azeta Hatef, auh238@psu.edu.

GSIC Officers:

Azeta Hatef, president
auh238@psu.edu

Stephanie Orme, officer
slo154@psu.edu

Please keep in mind, any questions regarding policies and guidelines, should be directed to Betsy Hall at brh3@psu.edu or 814-865-3070.

Graduate Student Handbook

The College of Communication's Graduate Student Handbook is currently being produced and will be available online at the end of June. If you would like a hard copy of the new handbook sent to you, please contact Betsy Hall brh3@psu.edu or 814-865-3070. Associate Dean Ford Risley; Graduate Programs Chair Matt McAllister; and Coordinator of Graduate Education Betsy Hall suggest all new graduate students review the handbook before orientation.

Bios Needed

The College would like to include a brief bio of new graduate students in an informational packet to be distributed to new students and College of Communications faculty. Please send Laurie Porter LPorter@psu.edu your bio by Friday, July 29. Although the bio below does not include a sentence about a fun fact, please provide one. Below is a sample of a bio from one of our current students:

Jennifer Hoewe earned her bachelor's degree in communications with an emphasis in journalism and an English minor at Grand Valley State University, where she was named the Outstanding Graduate Student and inducted into Kappa Tau Alpha. Jennifer held three research assistantship MSU for which she analyzed news media coverage of minority groups and helped research and write a U.S. presidential history textbook. In 2011, she won a top paper award at the annual Broadcast Education Association convention. As a Ph.D. student at Penn State, Jennifer plans to study media effects, specifically the new media's ability to develop and perpetuate stereotypes through the uses of framing, cuing and priming.

New International Travel Policy

The University has recently issued new policy requirements related to international travel. The new International Travel Requirements Policy, effective May 16, 2016, applies to all University employees, students, and authorized volunteers while travelling as part of any University-Affiliated International Travel, regardless of the funding source, including individuals and groups of students participating in for-credit academic study-abroad experiences.

This policy requires that all international travel (other than approved education abroad programs) commencing after July 1, 2016 be registered in the Office of Global Programs' Travel Safety Network (TSN) a minimum of 30 days prior to travel. As part of the travel registration, students are required to attend an Emergency Preparedness Workshop conducted by the Office of Global Programs, and obtain the international health and emergency coverage offered through HTH Worldwide, prior to departure (see Penn State Travel Policy/Insurance). More information about this insurance and the requirement to provide proof of coverage is located in the TSN database.

International travel reimbursement will not be approved without a receipt from the TSN confirming registration, completion of the Emergency Preparedness Workshop and HTH insurance coverage.

Students indicating that they weren't aware of the policies will not be considered an acceptable reason for not registering in the TSN, not completing the Emergency Preparedness Workshop and for not having the required HTH travel insurance. University funds will not be approved for any costs associated with their travel in such cases.

The July 1 effective date is for actual travel. If an international trip is already booked and will happen after July 1, the traveler is required to register with TSN. Questions about the operation or use of the TSN system should be directed to the TSN Staff within the Office of Global Programs. The TSN Staff may be reached via email (tsn@psu.edu) or via phone (814-863-8788).

Background Checks: Grad Students on Assistantships

You will be receiving an email from Penn State's central Human Resources office with instructions on completing the background check through First Advantage.

Please email Betsy Hall, brh3@psu.edu, after your background check is complete or if you have any questions.

Successful completion of background checks is required for all incoming students receiving an assistantship.

International Student AEOCPT

All international students are required to take the AEOCPT.

For International Graduate Students

The AEOCPT is designed for the purpose of determining the extent to which a potential International Teaching

Assistant (ITA) demonstrates a sufficient level of English language proficiency required to carry out the duties of a teaching assistant in his/her home department. The score an ITA receives on this test will determine when he/she may assume teaching duties as a teaching assistant. Also, effective January 1995, an American English Communicative Proficiency Test (AEOCPT) score is required for enrollment in ESL 115G, ESL 117G, and ESL 118G. Students who have not taken the oral proficiency test will not be permitted to enroll in these courses.

More information on the dates and times will be sent out in late June.

COMM Graduate Course Offerings—Fall 2016

COMM 501: Proseminar in Mass Communications

Wednesday, 8:00-11:00 am — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Patrick Parsons

The course will review and discuss the major concepts, issues and approaches involved with studying media from a social science perspective.

COMM 502: Pedagogy in Communications

Tuesday, 6:00-9:00 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Kevin Hagopian

The course focuses on the unique characteristics of undergraduate education in the communications discipline. The principles and practices covered in the seminar have applications for teaching communications in a number of venues including the academic, business and government professional settings. The course involves students in collaborative learning, assessment skills, powerful pedagogies, practical workshops and substantive reviews and applications of curricular and pedagogical research in the communications discipline.

COMM 506: Research Methods in Communications

Wednesday, 2:30-5:30 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

S. Shyam Sundar

This is a gateway course on social science research, providing students a rigorous introduction to basic methodological concepts needed for conducting empirical research. Students will learn how to explicate concepts, ask research questions and test hypotheses using experiments, surveys and content analyses. They will critically analyze published research, by identifying threats to validity of inferences. They will conduct a research project from start to finish, and produce original, publishable research.

COMM 515: MA Proseminar in Mass Communications

Friday, 10:10-1:10 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Michel Haigh

This course provides an orientation to graduate study in the field of mass communications. The course focuses on the essence of scholarship: the nature and role of theory in scholarship, and the function and process of research. The course will provide a macro perspective of theory and research. Sessions will offer an opportunity to explore a range of major theories in the content niche of interest to each student. The course culminates with the preparation of a research prospectus.

COMM 518: Media Effects

Thursday, 3:30-6:30 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Michael Schmierbach

This course focuses on key theories in the social-scientific study the individual/social effects of media use. The class explores how media shape our attitudes and behaviors in different contexts, including enjoyment, consumer behavior, politics, stereotyping, aggression, learning, and ongoing attitudes toward media. Course readings include scholarship on traditional media such as print, television and film as well as interactive media such as social networking and video games. Students should have a basic familiarity with quantitative research, but the class is ideal for anyone interested in the media, whether they have prior experience with scholarship in the area. Students are welcome even if they are taking COMM 506 concurrently or have completed equivalent coursework in another department.

COMM Graduate Course Offerings—Fall 2016 (continued from previous page)

COMM 580: Seminar in Telecommunications: Copyright and Culture

Tuesday, 2:30-5:30 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Matt Jackson

Study of the historical and contemporary issues and problems in telecommunications.

COMM 597.001: Data models in Communications

Thursday, 3:30-6:30 pm — 008 Carnegie Bldg.

Mary Beth Oliver

Structural equation modeling (SEM) and related procedures have become very popular techniques in most social scientific disciplines, as they allow for more rigorous and theoretically enriching examinations of our data. The purpose of this course is to provide an introduction to and foundation for SEM contextualized in terms of applied research. It will emphasize a conceptual understanding (rather than a mathematically derived focus) of the processes involved and decisions required in conducting these types of analyses. It will illustrate how researchers often report their results in scholarly publications, and provide students with numerous opportunities to practice their skills, both during the course and on their own.

Topics include introductions to path analysis, confirmatory factor analysis, and structural equation modeling.

COMM 597.002: Social Media Research Seminar

Monday, 2:30-5:30 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Bu Zhong

By introducing selected theories and concepts used in social media research, this seminar explores the social media impacts on social, political and economic interactions, in particular the social processes, such as identity formation and relationship-development, in online communities created by social media. The goal is to familiarize you with the latest social media research, practical and theoretical implications of such research, and identify areas that deem further empirical research. Most importantly, this course focuses on research with practical implications.

COMM 597.003: Cultural Industries

Monday, 9:05-12:05 pm — 003 Carnegie Bldg.

Michael Elavsky

This course explores how scholars have theoretically and methodologically engaged the cultural industries as cultural entities, discursive formations, sites of practice, and ideological constructs.

LionPATH

LionPATH is Penn State's student information system, which provides students with access to their academic, registration, and financial records.

Students can enroll for classes, view/accept their financial aid awards, and view their tuition bills.

The following website gives detailed information on getting started with LionPATH, understanding the student center, using the mobile app, and much more on class searches and enrollment help.

<http://lionpathsupport.psu.edu/help/graduate-students/>

Thanks to Lars Stoltzfus, below is a quick guide for enrolling in courses:

To enroll in classes:

1. On the LionPATH sidebar, click Main Menu. In the drop-down list, select Self-Service and then Student Center.
2. On the Student Center page, you will be able to see your schedule and there will be a link to the enrollment shopping cart.
3. The Enrollment page will show you your shopping cart, classes for which you've enrolled, and a search bar. You can enter the class number or click the green Search button to do a more advanced search.
4. Once you've entered your criteria, a number of classes will show up that meet those criteria. When you find a class you like, you may click on it to get more details. If you still like it, you will have the option to add it to your shopping cart—but you're not quite done yet!
5. When you add your class, you will be taken back to the page that shows your shopping cart. Here, you will click on the course again and will click on the green Enroll button.
6. Repeat this with all of your classes.
7. If there is a class you decide you don't want to take, or you have too many classes, you can delete courses from your shopping cart. Leave courses in your shopping cart until you are sure about what you want to do with them.

All students need to log into LionPATH and complete the financial information before being registered for courses.

If you have any questions, please contact Betsy or Laurie.

Football Tickets

Penn State Football
Tickets Available

The 2016 student season football ticket sale will soon begin. All returning and first-year graduate degree students who wish to purchase a 2016 season ticket may do so on a first-come-first-serve basis during the student sale period, Monday, June 22. Pre-registration will not be available.

Information regarding football ticket sales may be found at:

➤ Graduate Student Organizations ➤

Graduate Students in Communication (GSIC)

Graduate Students in Communication (GSIC) is an organization composed of all the graduate students in the College of Communications. It acts as a liaison between the graduate student community and the Associate Dean's Office. While every graduate student in the College is a member of GSIC, 2-3 students are elected each spring to serve as executive officers (president, vice president, and secretary/treasurer). GSIC officers often assist with implementation of new policies and procedures to better the graduate student community.

They also listen to graduate students' concerns, suggestions and questions about anything involving graduate life in the College, and bring information to the Associate Dean's Office as needed.

GSIC also collaborates with other organizations and departments at Penn State to get more resources for graduate students. For instance, graduate students who are enrolled in courses at University Park are eligible for UPAC funding, which can offer graduate students extra money for conference travels on top of the funds from our College.

GSIC also hosts various social events throughout the semester, such as the Annual Fall Picnic. Watch for updates on our GSIC Facebook page.

As a community, GSIC likes to hear from you! Please feel free to contact GSIC officers:

Azeta Hatef, auh238@psu.edu

Stephanie Orme, slo154@psu.edu

with any questions, concerns or suggestions. Join our Facebook page and we look forward to seeing you during our social events!

Comm GRAD Forum (CGF)

The Comm GRAD Forum (CGF) is an open and inclusive group dedicated to enriching the intellectual and professional interests of graduate students in the College of Communications. Not only will the CGF expand our knowledge base and deepen our understanding and ability as scholars, but it also will be a venue in which we can engage with scholarship across disciplines. CGF is about us students— we aim to showcase the work and intellectual interests of everyone under the broad communications umbrella so that we can learn from each other and become more well-rounded as scholars. Everyone who participates provides service to their colleagues, college and the academic community.

Currently, we are actively planning a brown bag lunch series, where student scholars will have the opportunity to present research in an informal and inviting atmosphere that will likely enrich those presenting, and foster great discussion between those watching. We are also planning on a series of professional-oriented workshops such as creating a CV and the journal submission process. Importantly, though, we are here for the students and will respond to the interests of you. For more information and input, please join the Comm Grad Form Facebook page.

The Graduate and Professional Student Association (GPSA)

The Graduate and Professional Student Association (GPSA) serves Penn State's graduate students by supporting programming for leadership, service, and social opportunities. Furthermore, the GPSA advocates for student interests, and represents the graduate student voice before the university's administration. Upcoming events sponsored by the GPSA and open to all graduate students include social mixers, the winter gala, and a dissertation bootcamp (all dates TBA). Meetings are scheduled twice monthly, Wednesdays at 6pm in 134 HUB-Robeson Center. All are welcome to attend. If you would like to plan an event on campus, the GPSA has funds and resources to support you.

For information about becoming involved, please contact the College of Communications delegate Jared LaGroue (jal570@psu.edu).

The current calendar of events can be found at <http://gpsa.psu.edu/calendar-of-events/> and you are encouraged to subscribe to the GPSA newswire (email gpsanewswire@gmail.com) for weekly updates.

Happy Valley Annual Community Events

Arts Fest
July 14-17, 2016

Central Pennsylvania Festival of the Arts is better known as Arts Fest and is held each July in downtown State College. Over the course of four days, the Streets are lined with hundreds of art vendors ranging from sculptures and wood working to photography and jewelry. Past entertainment has included singing and musical performances, dancers, films, sidewalk art, and even sand sculpting. www.arts-festival.com

The American Association of University Women (AAUW) Used Book Sale is held every May. The Ag Arena at Penn State is transformed over four days for one of the largest book sales on the East Coast. Hundreds of thousands of books are donated over the year and are sorted into 25 distinct categories. www.aauwstatecollege.org/booksale.html

The Penn State IFC/Panhellenic Dance Marathon, better known as THON, is the largest student-run philanthropy in the world. It benefits the Four Diamonds Fund at Penn State Hershey Children's Hospital, which helps the fight against pediatric cancer. Each February, people fill the Bryce Jordan Center to watch students dance without sitting or sleeping for 46 hours. www.thon.org

THON
February 2017

Central Pennsylvania 4th Fest is a daylong Fourth of July celebration held on the east campus of Penn State. Events include the Parade of Heroes, Firecracker 4K Race, music performances and a spectacular firework display choreographed to music. www.4thfest.org/

Grange Fair
August 19-27, 2016

The Centre County Grange Encampment and Fair, otherwise known as Grange Fair, is located in Centre Hall, PA and takes place every August. Campers live inside this "city within a town" for a week. The fairgrounds include 950 tents, 1,300 campers and over 7,000 exhibit items, rides and livestock. Established in 1874, the fair is considered a family tradition that generations continue to enjoy great food, music, crafts, competitions, and more. www.grangefair.net
