

My interest in sports journalism has grown through my experiences at Penn State. Through 360 Sports, I have gained experience as an on-air talent, researching sports news, statistics, and storylines while having live sports discussions. I have also worked with CommRadio and After the Whistle as an analyst, writer, cameraman, producer, and graphics operator. I am currently interning with the Penn State football production team, gaining hands-on experience in live sports production. These experiences have helped me realize that I want to build a career in sports media and continue improving my ability to report, communicate, and tell stories. At Penn State, I plan to continue getting involved with sports media opportunities while gaining more experience through internships and live sports production. Earning the Sports Journalism Certificate would allow me to strengthen my journalism skills while combining my passion for sports with my goal of becoming a sports broadcaster.
