

March 28, 2019

Catie,

I am writing in support of Alexandra Palacios's application to be a part of Comm Agency. Alex was in my First Year Seminar this semester.

Alex is a serious student and a serious person. She pays attention in class her contributions are thoughtful. The final project for the class was creative, giving the students a chance to write a song, poem, or spoken word piece or create a video that tied the class to what's happening in the current media scape. Alex wrote a poem/spoken word piece that tapped into the anger associated with #metoo movement, then she created a video showing images and using sound bites to back up her words.

It was easily the best project in the class. Her video skills seem strong to me (not a video expert), but the way she expressed herself in the poem and then the images used to tell her story are noteworthy. I'm sure she'd show it to you if you asked.

I know Comm Agency is a small group of people who work on projects together. I think Alex would be a great asset not just because she already has skills that would make her a good fit, but because she has stories to tell and a distinctive voice. The unique person she is would add depth to your team.

I'm happy to answer any questions you have, but I recommend Alex without hesitation.

Sincerely,

Shannon Kennan
Director of eLearning Initiatives and Associate Teaching Professor
Bellisario College of Communications
skennan@psu.edu