Dear Director Grant,

I am applying for a position in the video division for the Spring 2019 semester and beyond. I heard of this position through the emails sent out by Robert Martin. I am very interested in the job and believe I am well qualified and would be a good fit for the agency.

Throughout my entire life I've always been very passionate, dedicated, and ambitious about filmmaking and the entertainment industry. I'm currently a Film-Video major and in September of 2014 I founded my very own production company T.M. Productions; and have since worked on a number of projects including a reality TV show that I am creating and starring in and have been working on with another company since 2016. I have a wide variety of skills in many areas of the creative and production process, and I believe that my experience would be well-suited for the agency and could help tremendously with completing and delivering high quality content to your clients. I am also very capable of achieving good storytelling and being able to craft and deliver a specific creative vision, being best suited working above-the-line and focusing on the big picture. In addition my charismatic and sociable personality will help attract and communicate with clients. Moreover, despite already having prior experience, I am very much willing to learn more and improve my skills.

This is a job I would very much love to do and I hope you will consider me for the position. I hope to hear back from you. Thank you for your time and have a wonderful day.

Sincerely,

Tyler Mannino
