

I am desiring this internship as a way to gain more real world experience, especially at an agency since I have not had a previous internship at one. I hope to gain a greater understanding of the working world, as well as improve upon my existing skills in anticipation for a job post graduation. For my career aspirations I hope to begin working at either an agency or brand working on their social team with the end goal of opening my own social agency. I have had previous experiences but each one teaches me something new about PR and the social industry, and lets me improve for my future. I want to learn as much as I can before I graduate so that when I do, I am not only prepared, but qualified to succeed in the working world.
