

I would love the opportunity to intern with Tierney this fall as I think it could be a great stepping stone to launch my career as a public relations practitioner. The skills and opportunities that this internship will provide me with will give me firsthand experience as to what life could be like in the role once I graduate. I think interning is a great opportunity to put the things I have learned in my classes here at Penn State to the test in a real life scenario. Additionally, I think interning will allow me to confirm that public relations is the field I desire to go into and teach me valuable life skills such as time management, how to communicate in a professional setting, and the importance of building connections.
